“ My beautiful mother is one of the strongest people I've ever known. She was a true blue fighter and survivor, an outright warrior. Not only for herself but for all of her children. When I was about 13, my ma once told me that I was a seeker of rainbows... I never really knew what that actually meant back then but over the course of my life, I can honestly say that I have seen and been many, many a color. I am so proud of the woman you are and the woman you have made me and I will never, ever stop missing you. Fly high and run like the wind ma because you will forever & always be the rainbow I'm seeking. I love you.

“ I remember when we first me we had to be about 5 our Dads served in the Korean War together the two of us hit it off. We were more like sisters than friends. As we grew we went roller skating and loved every minute of it.

“ I loved her laugh and her amazing smile. Many weekend game nights that had us all cracking up while playing Philadelphia Rummy (our family knows what we call it! LOL)! I miss those times. Her smile lit up the entire room. Rest well, Aunt Pat. You fought a long and hard battle. We love you!
