“ Bj was always my conscience. When I was 16 I went home with them and I was supposed to not gain any weight before I returned home... I ordered a chef salad and they all got plates with really good food... When my salad got there it was bigger than any of their plates... And you can imagine how he never let me live that down... He and I were always messing with each other and he was always telling me I was too loud and silly... So we came up with a joke between us about being hilarious... He was messing with me and all the hospital Personel the day before he left this world and I'm going to miss him and I love you Bj.
