“ I was just a preschooler when the Washburn's moved in next door. Mr. Washburn was working at home to convert his garage into a den. I would go over and watch him work. He would stop and do something funny to make me laugh. He even stopped the construction to help me learn to ride my bike. Good times. As I got to know Malcolm and Calvin, every time I knocked on their door, he would look surprised and say, “Well dad gum; it’s one of them Jones girls” (I had six older sisters). Mr. Washburn was a great man who made time for a neighborhood kid like me. RIP Mr. Washburn!
