“ I only had the opportunity to know Danny for a short week on a hog hunting trip we enjoyed near Amarillo. He was truly a great guy and a pleasure to spend time with. I was hoping for an opportunity to get to spend more time with him, but he was taken away way too soon.

“ I still have soOo much to learn from the Big Guy that I feel cheated... The Lord's plans are not always our own plans but we accept them with great sorrow and mourning. Dan was my manager and I have never worked under such a great person before. His humor always came through at the best & worst times, and never lost a bit of respect from anyone. Dan taught me how to clean and operate my first hand gun -- as well as how to shoot it. He mentored me on not only shooting but on my career as well. He helped define my next foot steps in a supply chain management career. I owe him more then words can express... I will miss you Big Guy...

“ I had the opportunity to know Dan through our business. He was Firm in his expectations but had a soothing and generous personality. Over time I got to admire his steady approach, earned his trust and confidence. He taught me some things about hand guns and their place in our life in America. Thank your for your trust, your confidence, yur time and the business that we together were able to develop.
