

David Lee Brown

January 19, 1951 - April 1, 2024

David Lee Brown, born on January 19, 1951, in Central City, Nebraska, to Melvin Ellis Brown and Roaslie Vivian Wood, peacefully departed from this world on April 1, 2024, at his residence in Frost, Texas.

David's life was marked by a profound love for music and a talent for songwriting. His melodies echoed the depth of his soul, and his passion for playing music illuminated the lives of those around him. Through his artistry, he brought joy, solace, and inspiration to many.

He is survived by his beloved mother, Roaslie Vivian Wood, and cherished by his siblings: Yvonne, Reva, Marie, and Melvin. His legacy lives on through his son, David Jr., as well as nieces, nephews, and a multitude of friends and admirers.

In the embrace of eternity, David is reunited with his father, Melvin Ellis Brown, his wife Betty McNeely Brown, brother James Brown, and sister Linda England. Their spirits intertwine, forever bound by the ties of love and memory.

Cremation arrangements have been entrusted to the compassionate care of Griffin-Roughton Funeral Home.

David's life was a symphony of creativity, kindness, and love. His melodies will linger in our hearts, resonating with the harmony of his spirit. Though he may have left this earthly stage, his music continues to echo through the corridors of time, a testament to a life well-lived and a soul deeply cherished.
