“ Jen, I am so sorry...I would love to tell you the pain will go away, but I've learned that it is always there... you just learn to live with it a little easier as time passes!! Everyone's life is a just story to tell when it is all said and done, I'm sorry this chapter of your book ended before you thought it would. I'm always here for you. You helped me reason out some tough things in my life, let me return the favor... Love ya' girl!!

“ Jennifer,

We are so sorry to hear of you and your family's loss. I pray for you and Jerry and that you may be able to find peace with this. Though I would never say this is God's will, I do feel sure that He will bend it to His will and you will survive this. I will pray for you and your family and for Jerry. I wish we could have been there for you at this time. I would like to leave you with my prayers: May God's grace and peace be bestowed on you, your family and Jerry at this time and may His peace, which surpasses all understanding, come upon you and strengthen you during this dark time. May He grant eternal rest and peace to Jerry and admittance into his loving kingdom. I will keep you all in my prayers and wish you only the best.

“ Jennifer,
Having lived through one of these life tragedies myself, know that--- while it does not "go away"--it does get easier to deal with over time. Our 'work family', along with your beautiful and loving family will help you when you think you cannot do it. You are a strong and devoted Mom...but all the people on this list are willing to step in when you need us to help if you want. We all love you, Hayley and Trey dearly and pray for peace and comfort for the family. Hugs,

“ Semper Fi, Jerry could never be any other way. He was admired and respected as a dedicated father, husband, and American. Too bad his dedication and honor aren't embraced by more people in today's world. I am glad I knew him and will always remember and respect him. If I can be of service please do not hesitate to let me know. David Childers, Sgt. USMC

“ I wish that there were adequate words to express our sorrow for you and your family. Jerry was a wonderful friend to all of us and he will be missed more than we can say. Everytime that I think of Jerry, all I can see is that big ole smile, he was usually joking around. He really gave me a hard time at the JNHS induction about my broken legs!! I know that you know this, but I have to say how thankful I am that he was a part of Greg and Mona's life - he brought them so much joy and the hole that he has left will never be replaced by anyone else. We love you and your family and we will continue to smile everytime we think of Jerry.
