I'll miss knowing my cousin is around, we go all the way back to Grandma Dunagan's apt. at the redbricks when the whole family would come in from far and wide for Christmas. Later on he let me have his couch for a while when I needed it. He invited me to put on the gloves at the YMCA one time and I bowed out pretty quick with a busted lip. Not my idea of a good time, cous. I'll miss ya. -Mike King

“ I always called him KD. He was a true character in my life. We went to church together as kids. I was 5 years older, but he paid me no respect as his elder. Our lives kept crossing paths with each other as we moved forward and became adults. OK, I became an adult; but KD held onto his youth. He finally married Sandy, one of my best friends, but he continued to entertain us with his crazy ways and love for life. He is lucky he lived so long. Me and Sandy use to swear we were going to kill him and he just laughed at us. He live life his way and never apologized to anyone. I really loved that about KD. Vicky Prater.
