“ I extend my deepest condolences to Lee Roy's family and friends. We were classmates in the same grades and graduated together in 1954. I always had a very high respect for Lee Roy especially when we played football and basketball on the same team with Coach Howard Teichelman. I just found out about his passing today (5-30-07). I was honored to know him and always respected him very highly. He will always be in my prayers.

“ I have so many memories of Lee Roy that it is difficult to highlight the best or the fondest. He was one of the most intelligent men I have had the fortune of knowing.

His fishing abilities far exceeded those of his peers. He proudly taught those skills to his sons, daughters and grandchildren, if not on the lakes, by their earnest listening to his fishing stories. He is now telling his fishing stories with the Fisherman of all men.

When it came to playing Canasta, he and Mark were unbeatable. I can't tell you the hours that we spent sitting around the table after they had come back from fishing. Barbara and I would try so many different strategies to beat them. Seldom, if ever, did it work. I remember how he would pull the bill of his cap down so that we couldn't read his face - he'd just give a little chuckle when we'd tell him to take his cap off. I don't think it would have helped us if he had. Dominoes, whether playing straight, moon or 42, was the same.

He loved to work in the yard and the garden. Their garden always produced a nice crop and his yard was always well kept.

Speaking of the yard, I remember how he enjoyed sitting in the backyard and barbecuing a nice brisket, a load of sausage and a some chickens. Some of the best you'd ever have eaten.

Those are just a few of the things I remember and will always cherish in my heart.

My truest love and heartfelt sympathy to Barbara and his entire family. My thoughts and prayers are with each of you.

*Love always,
Sarah*

“ Mark Taylor always spoke of outings that he and his father shared and how much they loved to go fishing. Lee Roy Taylor seemed to be a man that he looked up to, admired and loved deeply. May the memories that you shared together live on in your heart and the fishing stories continue to pass down through the ages. I pray that God will comfort you and your loved ones in the days that follow. God Bless.
