“ God called another angel home (too soon for us)...for reasons we'll never understand. I pray that Jamie, they boys, and their families will find peace and comfort in Lou's memories in the days ahead. Lou was such a funny guy, loved his family, and lit up a room when he walked in. I am thankful to have known him over the years and though I have not seen him in person in a couple of years we still carry love in our hearts for him. Any that knew him would say the same. May you RIP now Lou. We'll help watch over your family with you. Love, Lisa

“Louis will truly be missed. I got to work with him at rural hill EMS in Hubbard. We had a lot of laughs in the station joking around having a good time. Then one day Louis walked out side and told me to come on let's got walk lunch off. So we walked out side to his truck and he pulled out a tire with old fire hose on it I said Lou what on earth are you doing. He stopped and said Aaron we are about to walk around the block 2 times and pullthis tire. Remind your self this was a semi tire. I just stoud there and said Lou you want to walk around the block and pull this tire he said yes. Louis told me Aaron watch I will do it first then you pull it so I said ok I can do this. So off we went around the block Lou pulling this tire. We made it back to the starting point and switched off so I put the straps on and start pulling this tire I get half way and start going real slow Lou saying come on Aaron half way to go. Lou was cheer me on and all I could say to him yeah just half way to still go Lou and you are crazy for pulling a tire when you walk around the block he just started laughing saying you feel it burn I said yeah I feel it. We made it back to the station with my legs feeling like jello and Lou can't stop laughing at me. I said you know pay back is always fun Lou and you just may have it coming. So we went back in the day room at the EMS station to watch tv and Lou falls asleep. The wrong thing to do I went and got the shaving cream out of my bag and made a smiley face on his when he turned his head he brushed his face with his arm and woke up saying what in the world and just started laughing all I could do was laugh and Lou saying in the laughing voice yeah it was pay back. Lou my buddy I will miss you truly. I know you are looking over Jamie and the boys may you watch over them during this time I know you was a husband father coach and a heck of a medic and a firefighter. Lou my man may you rest in peace and your brotherhood in the fire service will take it from here.”
