“ While we only knew each other through Facebook, you became my dearest friend. I don't have the words to to truly show what you meant to me Natasha, I was heartbroken when I stopped by your page this morning to check on you after not seeing you on for a few days, when I saw the comments there, I was in shock. I still am. I can't believe you're gone. Rest easy my dear friend, knowing you were loved around the globe. You will be greatly missed. Love and light on your journey.

“ Hey Boo Boo,

I have seriously struggled with what to put here. God, how do you put years into a little box?? You were one of the best, most memorable parts of my childhood. If anything good came out of Ferris, TX it was you. You truly proved what it meant to be genuine, unique and authentic. There was nothing about you that was fake...not even your hair...you just made it match your spirit. I can't help but think back to when we were kids and it makes me laugh because I remember SO MANY things. You were instrumental in breaking me out of my sheltered little box. You taught me about trampolines and ghosts, Fleur Elise and 90s hair bands and much, much more!! LOL I have such a huge appreciation for your authenticity. No matter how old you were/weren't, you never let ANYONE determine who YOU were or how you should act. I can't believe we were joking about the hitch hiker with a pick axe just two days before you were gone. I love you with all my heart and soul.

*Your friend forever,
Becca aka Yogi*

I am in shock of your passing. I remember the first time you came in my office when I worked at the Humane Society. You had so much love for your animals. You were a sweet lady. I loved your spirit and smile. The world has truly lost a wonderful lady. I wished I knew about this last week. I just found it out today Saturday 6th. Prays for your family.

“ I'll never forget how after Hurricane Katrina you drove all the way to Mississippi to get and my boys . While in Texas you helped me with everything and took me every where I needed to go. You did it out the kindness of your heart. I loved keeping up with you on FB. You didn't bite your tongue especially about the things you believed in. Love you cousin.

“ You are loved by so many people from all over the world Natasha. You touched upon so many lives throughout your own, and you brought happiness and joy to all of us in your own unique way. You will continue to be an inspiration. You were a wonderful mom to your two beautiful children, and you will always be my best friend. I love you so, and I miss you.

“ The day we became friends (10/30/11) you were defending your right to believe whatever you wanted without being ridiculed for it. This would become a running theme in your life. Whether it was race, skin color, weight, sexuality, religion, politics, whatever you were right there in the middle mixing it up... daring anyone anywhere to tell you what you or anyone else could or couldn't do, think, believe or be. You are one of the strongest human's I've ever met, and every day from this day until I meet up with you in the afterlife to haunt the crap out of everyone we see, I'll be missing you and wondering what more we could have seen together. They say Facebook friendship isn't real. I dare anyone to say that to my face. I love you girlie. You're my best friend and I'm lost without you.
