“ Robin was a true artist. She created life from seed, from pen and ink, from scraps of material, and yarn. Every plant, animal, family member, everything she drew, painted, stitched, or glued together, had a story. She gave it life, thus giving you memories. She was a private woman who believed in leaving something better than she found it. Family was her joy, and therein lies her greatest gift of all, the gift of knowledge. She taught without teaching -- learn from the seeds she sowed. Live without regret, love with abandon, and give back as much as you get. She was always a child of the Earth, and now she's free to roam.....love you my sister.....
