“ When the preacher said Willie was a "character" he used the right word. Willie was not only a character he was a diplomat. "He could tell a person to go to hell in such a nice way they would look forward to the trip." Willie was also a kind, loving, generous person who would do anything to help his family or a friend in need. Willie may have had foes, however they loved Willie for who he was and overlooked the problems. Willie did not have to work at making friends, it just came naturally. He was a genuine personality and a bona fide Texan. I am glad I got to know and love Willie for who he really was; I will miss him.

“Willie & Wayland”

We always said we were the originals; just don't ask us to sing. Willie was more like a brother to me than a cousin. We grew up together, even though I got a few years head start. We played together and came up with some pretty farfetched ideas together. Willie's childhood home was in Oak Forest, Houston, Texas and the central meeting place for all our friends. Willie's mom, Aunt Mary Belle was a great cook and kept the kitchen full of food for 2 growing boys, not to mention all the other urchins Willie and I drug home to eat. Dayton, Willie's dad and mine were the finest dads any boy could have. They were caring and attentive and always ready to help in any unbelievable wild idea we came up with and were always ready to defend us and bail us out of any trouble we might get into. I could write a non-fiction best seller on all the keen ideas we came up with and carried out, most before we got caught or produced something worthwhile. When I get depressed I think of all the wild things we use to do as kids then realized that we weren't kids when we did some of these crazy antics. There was just NO way you "could not" love Willie, he would see to that! Willie loved his family with all his heart. Willie was not only my cousin; he was my friend I loved like no other. I know that Willie is already planning our next venture so it will be perfected when I meet him on the other side. GOD bless Willie on his journey home.

“God Bless the family in this time of mourning. The world will truly be a darker place without the twinkle of the eyes of Willie Hutcheson. Godspeed old friend.

“ Words alone cannot express my sympathy on the untimely death of Uncle William. To say that his time with us was far too short is an understatement. The reality is that all who loved and knew him will sorely miss him. Personally, I will miss his interesting stories, his dry sense of humor and his excellent cooking abilities! He was also kind enough to always find something nice to say when I presented him the product of my limited cooking skills. My prayers go out to Jimmie, Shelley and the rest of the immediate family.

“ To a truly good friend that we will miss so much. Spending time with you around the B.B.Q pit in Dee's backyard on the last couple of visits, trying to keep that thing lit was a job, but listening to some of your stories from the things that you ventured into was priceless. Kathy will miss your teasing so don't let this stop you. Are prayers are with family. We love all so much.
